

All Out Against Enemy

U. S. And Great Britain Combine To Get Forces To Battle Fronts

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt informed congress today that lend-lease aid up to the end of May totalled $4,497,000,000 and that while the battle of production was on the way to being won, the battle of distribution was "in its critical phase."

"Our reservoir of resources is now approaching flood stage," he said. "The next step is for our military, industrial, and shipping experts to direct its full force against the centers of enemy power."

"Great Britain and the United States . . . are taking combined action to carry our men and weapons — on anything that will float or fly — to the places from which we can launch our offensives."

Roosevelt summed up for congress the results of 15 months of lend-lease operations — with the emphasis finally shifted from foodstuffs and industrial materials to a preponderance of fighting weapons and military items.

Program Started in 1941

The lend-lease program was instituted on March 11, 1941, and the aid extended since that time to the British commonwealth of nations and 35 other countries has amounted to $3,673,000,000 in goods and $824,000,000 in such services as repairing ships, ferrying aircraft and providing production facilities in this country.

The goods included $2,601,000,000 of articles transferred, that is, delivered to lend-lease nations at production or export points in this country. Of this amount, $2,133,000,000 has been exported.

The balance of the $3,673,000,000 is accounted for by articles awaiting transfer or use and those in process of manufacture. Congress requires a report on lend-lease activities from the president every three months, and today's was the fifth.

Works Both Ways

The lend lease assistance is not moving entirely in one direction, the report showed. To the full extent of their ability, the president said, our allies are supplying us with things we need.

He mentioned food and housing and equipment for American troops in Britain and Australia, special machine tools and equipment for munitions plants, British anti-aircraft guns at vital bases, and British developed plane detection devices.

When it comes to finally settling accounts at the end of the war, the report indicated that this country did not intend to demand repayment dollar for dollar, tank for tank, and plane for plane.

Real Costs Not Money

"The real costs of the war," it said, "cannot be measured, nor compared, nor paid for in money. They must be and are being met in blood and toil. But the financial costs of the war can and should be met in a way which will serve the needs of lasting peace and full economic well being."

"And although the nations richest in resources are able to make larger contributions, the claim of war against each is relatively the same. Such a distribution of the financial costs of war means that no nation will grow rich from the war effort of its allies. The money costs of the war will fall according to the rule of equality in sacrifice, as in effort."

Cooperation Contemplated

In many spheres where action is needed, the report asserted, cooperating action among the United Nations is contemplated to fulfill a program of economic progress. Then the report added:

"It is hoped that plans will soon develop for a series of agreements and recommendations for legislation in the fields of commercial policy, of money and finance, international investment and reconstruction."

Legion Auxiliary Aiding Draft Board

Members of the American Legion auxiliary to Post 16 are helping this week in sending out occupational questionnaires to Pettis county registrants in the first and second drafts.

Preparing the questionnaires for mailing today were Mrs. Homer Hall, Mrs. Mitchell Skaggs, Mrs. John Shoemaker and Mrs. Jack Morris.

The work is being done in the outer office of the county Selective Service Board.

Campaign For Old Rubber Starts Today

Filling Stations Will Buy It For A Cent A Pound

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—With the results to be measured in more machines for victory, and possibly a delay or forestallment of nationwide gasoline rationing, millions of Americans today began a search of attics, cellars, backyards and other places of discard for old rubber.

The campaign began by direction of President Roosevelt, who called upon every citizen to turn in "every bit of rubber you can possibly spare."

Each person was requested to take all discarded or spare rubber to the nearest of the 400,000 gasoline filling stations scattered throughout the country. The needed elastic may be donated or sold to the station operator for a penny a pound.

Oil Force In Charge

The oil industry announced its entire work force, numbering over 1,000,000 men and women, and its automotive equipment would handle the job of receiving the rubber for delivery to the government.

Although officials had made no flat statement that a decision on nationwide gasoline rationing would hinge on the campaign, William R. Boyd, Jr., chairman of the Petroleum Industry War Council, said that whether automobiles could be kept rolling "depends entirely on the total tonnage of rubber scrap there is."

Boyd emphasized that "any and all profits" accruing to the oil companies in the scrap transactions—between the cent-a-pound for scrap delivered at the service stations and the $25 a ton the government will pay for it—would go to the United Service Organizations, the army and navy relief and the Red Cross.

Acceptable Scrap Rubber

He listed acceptable scrap rubber as follows:

Tires, crepe rubber soles, tennis shoes, rubber sheeting, rubber heels, plumbers suction cups, tubes, boots and overshoes, rubber belting, pads and matting, bathing caps, sample tire sections, hard rubber tires, hot water bottles, rubber gloves, raincoats, jar rings, rubber ash tray tires "and hundreds of other articles made of rubber."

However, he said, collectors should not accept hard rubber battery boxes and should see that metal, wood and leather was removed from articles containing rubber, when delivered at the filling stations.

Telegram From Jack Oakie

Jack Oakie, movie star, formerly Lewis Offield, of this city, who was being seriously ill in Hollywood, is much improved according to a telegram received today by his cousin, Mrs. Lulu Human, in reply to a message asking about his condition. It reads:

"Dear Cousin: While ice skating with Sonja Heinie in our latest picture, Iceland, some cold air from the ice entered one of my nostrils and apparently failed to come out of the other one. The hospital here, needing money, and knowing I am a good customer, diagnosed my condition as flu, thereby alarming the nation. You know the Old Oakie Bucket gets a little mossy around the edges at times, but still in there swinging. Kidding aside, honey, I feel swell and thank you very much for your lovely note."

War Department Prepares Many Canned Messages For Armed Men

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The war department expects the current unpleasantness to continue beyond Christmas at least, judging from a list of "canned" messages which it has composed for communication between members of the American expeditionary forces and the folks back home.

Message No. 53 on the list which is being distributed to the commercial telegraph and cable companies, says:

"Happy Christmas and New Year."

The department has devised 102 fixed telegrams to cover almost any ordinary situation thus far, and is working on about 30 more to meet some of the more unusual ones.

"With few exceptions, E. F. M. (Expeditionary Forces message) service will cost 60 cents per message, exclusive of federal tax," the announcement said. "Up to three of the fixed texts may be used in one message, at no additional cost."

Some of them are brief and to the point. No. 29, for example, simply says:

"Love."

If you want to elaborate on this theme a little, you might send No. 32 which says "All my love, dearest," or No. 35, "Fondest love, darling."

Then, of course, there is the classification labeled "money." Nos. 88 and 99 respectively are:

"Please send me — pounds."

"Please send me — dollars."

No. 110 is bad news. It says:

"Sorry, can't send money."

Challenge To Community By War Veteran

Says Everyone Has Responsibility In War Program

John K. Walsh, of Jefferson City, a representative of the state department, American Legion, addressing a large crowd assembled on the lawn of the Elks home Sunday afternoon, at the Elks annual flag day program, issued a challenge to every man, woman and child in this community, to do his or her part towards a successful ending of the war.

Mr. Walsh, who is commissioner of the Americanism committee for the Missouri department, American Legion, called upon the men of military age, single or married, to join the armed forces. "Waive your exemptions if you are married," he said, "and join those boys now fighting."

Referring to the men who were of military age in the World War No. 1, the speaker said he did not know why, but those who were not in the service then, invariably offer some excuse today when the subject is mentioned. They state they were either married, were holding public office, had a business to look after, or for some other reason remained at home. They are not called upon to make an excuse, he said, the men who served and returned to their community are not accusing them, but their conscience must be hurting them. They volunteer an excuse, he said.

Refers To Last War

The principal units of the Black sea fleet are the Cruisers Red Crimea and Red Caucasus which played an important part earlier in the Russian recapture of Kerch and Feodosiya.

The warships previously had been engaged in maintaining a line of supply and communications for the port and naval base which has been cut off by land since last fall.

Naval infantry has been in action ashore for some time.

The Germans were reported to have bolstered — their assault forces with strong reserve strength including units shifted from other fronts.

Their former timetable of attack—from 5 a. m. to 9 p. m.—was said to have given way to 24-hour-a-day assault.

No Nazi Results

The Nazis, however, had little to show for their heavy sacrifices in either of those key battles of the coming Russian campaigns.

In the last two days, the Soviet information bureau said, the Germans have lost 2,850 men and much material on the Kharkov front alone.

The rest of the long Russian front, meanwhile, showed signs of shaking off the winter stalemate and bitter fighting at many scattered points suggested that the whole battle line may be springing into new action.

Must Show Strength

This is the psychological week for Hitler to show his people if he can, that the winter disaster on the Russian steppes has not drained the German army of its lightning power.

One week from today Germany's invasion of Russia will be one year old. Without a solid achievement to feed on since last fall, Germany's men will be asked to fight and her people to support a second year of war against a foe whose army, they were told long ago, was crushed and broken.

Defenders Outnumbered

The 15-mile deep defenses of Sevastopol were said to be exacting a frightful toll of the attackers as the Germans made assault after assault with manpower at some points five and six to one against the defenders.

In scorching heat, the enemy charged from all sides and were said to have reached the crest of one bombed and shelled hill before a quick Red army counter-attack backed them down. The hill was said to have changed hands four times.

Within Sevastopol, all civilians were reported armed with rifles and hand grenades, waiting coolly for any Nazi attempt to drop parachutists inside the fortifications.

Long Line of Action

Actions of local importance flared from the Black sea to the Arctic.

On the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow, a war bulletin reported two German attacks repulsed. It said 400 Nazis were killed in the recapture of an unidentified important point and 1,355 others were slain by guerrillas in a five-day period on the Leningrad front.

Five times Sunday, German planes struck at Murmansk, the Arctic gateway to United States and British aid, but were said to have scored no military damage.

Violent Sea-Air Battle Being Fought In the Mediterranean; Battle Is On For Sevastopol

Black Sea Fleet Aids By Taking Toll Of Axis Assault Forces

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, June 15.—(AP)—Steaming into the fight for Sevastopol with its guns thundering, the Soviet Black Sea fleet was reported today to have brought aid to the hard-pressed land garrison by laying down a deadly barrage which took a heavy toll of the Axis assault forces.

The battles in the tight-drawn siege lines around the Crimean port and on the shell-pocked front east of Kharkov in the Ukraine continued with undiminished fury.

However, there were no further reports of German gains on either front since dispatches of yesterday which said the Germans had pushed forward in some sectors at Kharkov and turned loose a full-scale onslaught against Sevastopol in an attempt to smash the Russian defenses by sheer weight of men and armor.

Dispatches from the Crimean flank of the battlefield did not identify the warships, reported in action for the first time since June 5 when the new battle for Sevastopol began.

Main Units Cruisers

The War News . . .
Streamlined

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—An effort by the Japanese to expand their landings in the Aleutian islands was expected by military authorities today, but whether they will try for knockout blows against important American bases was considered debatable.

Any large-scale operations well over into the waters of the western hemisphere, it was said, would certainly bring a swarm of United States Army and Navy bombers down upon invading ships. Short of desperation, the Japanese might well wish to avoid such attacks at this time, so soon after their bitter experiences with American air power in the Coral sea and Midway battles.

LONDON, June 15.—(AP)—The German army smashed savagely forward today in Libya and Russia toward the great eastern land bridge between the Caucasus and Suez, the area producing one seventh of the world's oil supply, in dual campaigns on which Hitler was staking the Reich's war resources for 1942.

LONDON, June 15.—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm today said it was reported there that the Germans had given Czechs in Bohemia and Moravia an ultimatum expiring Thursday to deliver up the slayers of Reinhard Heydrich, the Gestapo official, or take the consequences.

CHUNKING, June 15.—(AP)—An invasion column of Japanese striking into Kiangsi province from the east has penetrated into Kwangtung, 25 miles beyond the Chekiang border, cutting the Chinese-held central section of the Kiangsi-Chekiang rail line to less than 100 miles, the high command said tonight.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS

June 15.—(AP)—Darwin, Australia's north coast base, was raided by Japanese warplanes today for the third successive day and a few casualties resulted, General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

Twenty-seven Japanese bombers escorted by fighters, the largest force yet to reach Darwin in the series of assaults over the weekend, came over this afternoon. The headquarters announcement, which was not a formal communique, said damage was slight.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 15.—(AP)—A fluid battle raged on the desert approaches to Tobruk today as the British sought to adjust their positions while from the rear they violently attacked the axis columns of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel which were nudging a wedge toward the coast.

Headquarters Now At Base

The officers and all personnel, area engineers and architects for the Sedalia Air Base, at Knobnoster, have been moved to the base headquarters, at the base. Previously the headquarters were in the Warrensburg armory. About 100 persons of these two offices are at the base headquarters building.

The combined farms of Horner and Wright, and Tanner and Mitchell of Kansas City, are serving as architect engineers. They have drawn all plans and will supervise the work of the construction. These firms moved the remainder of the staffs from Kansas City Sunday.

Persons having business with the staff of the area engineer or the architect engineers, may obtain temporary passes by identifying themselves at the guard house on route D.

Italian Torpedo Planes, Bombers, Fighters Swarmed On British Convoy

BY CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press War Editor

A great running sea-air battle, which on the face of Axis reports—the only information available thus far—seems to have stemmed from a major strategical move of the Allies, was being fought today at Italy's Mediterranean doorstep between the Italian islands of Ardinia and Sicily.

The location of the battle, the strength and composition given by Rome for the allied naval force and the reckless expenditure of planes in the attack on it suggested either that Italian territory itself might be under attack or that the allies were engaged in a great transfer of strength between Gibraltar and Suez.

The Italian high command, in a special communique, claimed that two cruisers, one destroyer and two steamers were sunk out of one of two British convoys, and a battleship, an aircraft carrier, two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamers heavily damaged.

First Attack Sunday

The Italians said the convoy attacked was protected by "numerous units of the line and by two aircraft carriers." Spotting the convoy early Saturday, Italians said their scout planes later lost sight of it and the first attack was not delivered until Sunday.

"Numerous formations" of torpedo planes, bombers and fighters then struck the flotilla, the Italians related. They acknowledged 20 planes lost themselves and reported shooting 15 carrier-borne planes down in flames.

"The operations were resumed in the early hours of this morning against the remaining units," the communique concluded.

Action In Black Sea

Naval warfare broke out meanwhile in the Black sea where the Red fleet, thundering into action to bolster Sevastopol against land assault, laid a curtain of shell-fire on the encroaching Crimean line of the Germans.

Heavy Toll

Reports reaching Moscow said the naval bombardment took a heavy toll among the Germans with their scattering of Rumanian allies. The warships were not identified.

This turn in the battle of Sevastopol after seven months of German siege or active assault, and the veiled Mediterranean which provoked the Italian assault followed closely upon the forced landing of four United States army bombers in Turkey after some mysterious mission of destruction.

The report from Turkey over the week end was that the Americans had bombed Rumanian oil refineries but there also were various German reports that the bombers had participated in the defense of Sevastopol and had attacked German bases in Russia.

U. S. New Front

At any rate, considering official secrecy on the affair, there was a general relief in London and elsewhere that the United States had opened a new air front in the eastern Mediterranean.

If the British actually were moving convoys eastward from the Atlantic into the Mediterranean, as the Italians reported, they might have been carrying sizeable reinforcements for the Battle of Libya.

WASHINGTON, June 15—Only those on the inside realize it, but most tragic neglect of the war probably has been our failure to send bombing planes and munitions to China.

If the situation continues, China will be to the U. S. A. what Singapore was to the British Empire. And we will have to do some very embarrassing explaining as to why we sent China desperately needed munitions "too little and too late."

Tragic fact is that although the average American has read in the papers about U. S. supplies being carried triumphantly into China by U. S. airplanes, actually a mere dribble of munitions has arrived in China in the last three months.

It is also a tragic fact that of the 100 big transport planes taken from U. S. commercial airplanes to carry munitions to China, only about a dozen actually were sent to China. Many of them still are in the U. S. A.

Meanwhile, the Japs are taking advantage of U. S. indecision by staging a drive designed to put China out of the war, meanwhile building up their attacks on India and Australia.

Worried Over Doolittle

Very significant is the fact that this attack on China began just after Gen. Doolittle bombed Japan. The Japs suspect he used Chinese bases, so suddenly they stopped all their other war efforts to remove this danger.

How right the Japs are in launching this sudden new tactic is shown by the battle of Midway Island. Here U. S. land based planes made mincemeat of the Japanese fleet. But also U. S. warships could not pursue the Japs anywhere near the Japanese mandated islands, because we could not risk attack by Japanese land based planes.

In other words, land based planes are the key to this war, especially in the Pacific. For at present the Pacific war is land locked until we can get land bases near Japan to bomb her, or she can get land bases near us. For the old idea of the American navy steaming up to Yokohama and throwing shells into Japan proper is just as outmoded as the spear and armor of the Crusades — unless we have land based planes to protect the fleet.

Bed Bugs vs. Planes

The importance of China as a site for U. S. land based planes against Japan has long been recognized. Tragedy is that so little has been done about it. We are waking up just as the Japs are about to the land bases China has. We are waking up so slowly that some U. S. air corps strategists are not willing to send planes to China even today, feeling that they are more important elsewhere.

A short time ago Gen. "Hap" Arnold, chief of air corps, agreed to send a number of 4-motored transport planes to China. They should have made a real dent in the transportation problem and would almost have made up for loss of the Burma Road. But then someone close to Gen. Arnold persuaded him to change his mind. The planes have not yet been sent.

Meanwhile, a handful of twin-motored transports are slowly ferrying a trickle of munitions to China. And twin-motored planes can scarcely lift a load over the lofty Himalaya mountains, where there are forty peaks over 23,000 feet high.

Our military mission to China is headed by Gen. John Magruder, who went to Chungking to cooperate with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, but results have disappointed the Chinese. They have complained that some American officers seem most concerned about a dearth of bathtubs and a surplus of bed-bugs — which is something one has to take philosophically in China.

But greatest of all tragedies is that, time after time, Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong will go to officials in the state house and get a promise of a certain number of bombing planes.

"Now can we tell the Generalissimo definitely that these planes will be sent?" Soong asks White House officials.

"Yes, definitely."
"Because, if there is any doubt," Soong reminds, "it is much better not to promise."

"The planes will be sent," is the renewed promise. "You can cable the generalissimo."

But then the planes are not sent. Someone around Gen. Arnold in the air corps holds them up, despite White House orders. And little by little, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is beginning to wonder what an American promise amounts to.

Barbara Hutton's Baron

Barbara Hutton, multiple married 5 and 10 cent store heiress has been under surveillance by federal agents because of transatlantic telephone calls she has been making to a German baron. The former Princess Mdivani, apparently deeply in love with the German sportsman and not interested in his Nazi views, has made a practice of taking a private plane from Hollywood to Mexico where she placed a transatlantic phone call to the Baron. The Baron has a cousin living in Switzerland whom he kept informed of his movements. And when he expected to be in a city where he could receive a phone call, the cousin would cable Barbara from neutral Switzerland. Barbara would then take her private plane to Mexico and prepare for the clandestine phone call.

Barbara apparently did not realize that every word she said to the Baron was taken down by telephone censors. Not long ago, however, Barbara either cooled off toward the Baron or learned that he worked for the German government. For she sent him a cable instructing him not to communicate with her any more.

Note: Recently, Barbara has been in a Mexican Pacific coast resort with the Countess di Frazzola and a cousin of Foreign Minister Anthony Eden.

THE STORY: When Hunter Dent, Strickland Ballard's farm manager, finds Ballard's dissipated son, Junior, lying unconscious beside a satchel of money, he thinks he has a weapon against his rich but unscrupulous employer. Hunter has bet the elder Ballard that the latter will return the prize horse and new strain of corn which Ballard has stolen from him.

Shortly before Hunter finds Junior a bank messenger has been shot and robbed of $17,000, the amount in the satchel. Hunter puts the money in a safe, carries Junior, whom he thinks is drunk, to his own room. Next day he discovers that Junior has been wounded and is near death.

FATE OF THE MESSENGERCHAPTER IV*HUNTER DENT could hear the butter telephoning in an agitated voice. Hunter listened again to Junior Ballard's heart. There was just a faint throb of life there yet. A great remorse came upon Hunter. When he brought the boy here last night, thinking he was only drunk, he should have made sure. Everything now was complicated. The bank messenger near death; this young dissipated boy dying; Hunter had the missing $17,000 in his safe. His mind was added. He could hear Warwick's voice.Red entered breathlessly. She stopped, met Hunter's eyes straight and hard. "Hunter! Is Junior in there?"
"Yes, but you'd better not—" There was a long moment between them. "Is—is something wrong?"
"Not serious, I hope. Warwick has called Dr. Ferguson and your dad—""Look here, Hunter Dent. Tell me the truth. I can take it. What has happened to my brother?" She started past Hunter. He stopped her. She looked into his face. "Will you let me go ahead, Hunter?"
"All right," he said, dropping his hand from her arm. "But pull yourself together. He's bad hurt. I guess he's finished. He's lost his last bet, I have a hunch."HUNTER opened the door. Red went quickly in. Hunter watched her closely. She stepped across the room, stopped with a small gasp. If he expected her to throw herself across the body of her brother and become melodramatic he was slated for disappointment. She stood there breathing fast and looking upon the motionless youth. Hunter moved up to Red's side, a half-pace behind, just in case she could not take it. Then she turned. Her brown eyes were swimming. She went into his arms and put her face against him.

It seemed hardly more than a few moments before Strickland Ballard appeared. It was so early in the morning yet that the man had not had time to shave. Dr. Ferguson was but a moment behind. Hunter remained by the bed while the doctor made his examination. Ballard's face was a study in worry, fear, and anger.

"How is he, Doctor?"
Dr. Ferguson put his instrument in his bag. "He's not gone yet. I can't say how it will turn out. We've got to get him to the hospital for X-rays and then maybe we will know." He glanced at Warwick. "Did you call the ambulance?"Hunter said, "We could use the big new farm truck. It is as comfortable as the ambulance and we'd save time."
"A good idea. Let's do that."

As Hunter went out to get the truck Strickland Ballard followed him into the yard. He took his baffled wrath out on Hunter. "What's been going on around here?" How did this happen? I thought I left things here in your charge, sir."

Hunter was in a mood to hit Ballard where he lived—in his ego. "I am in charge of the animals, sir—and the crops. Including the famous Ballard Prolific strain. There was nothing said when I was employed here about being father to your children. I supposed you assumed that responsibility yourself." He strode off. In no time at all he came back in the powerful new truck.

They gently carried the unconscious boy out and bedded him in the truck. Hunter drove. Until he was almost in town he did not remember he had not had breakfast, not even a cup of coffee. Being an out-doors man he required food. He came to the hospital. There the attendants took Junior Ballard in. Hunter sighed. He hardly knew why. He felt sorry for the family; maybe he should have waited with them for some final news. He asked at the information desk as he started out. "This young fellow from the First National Bank, who was attacked last night and robbed—how is he?"
"He is dead."

Hunter was dazed. "Dead!" he repeated dully. "Did—he was unconscious—"

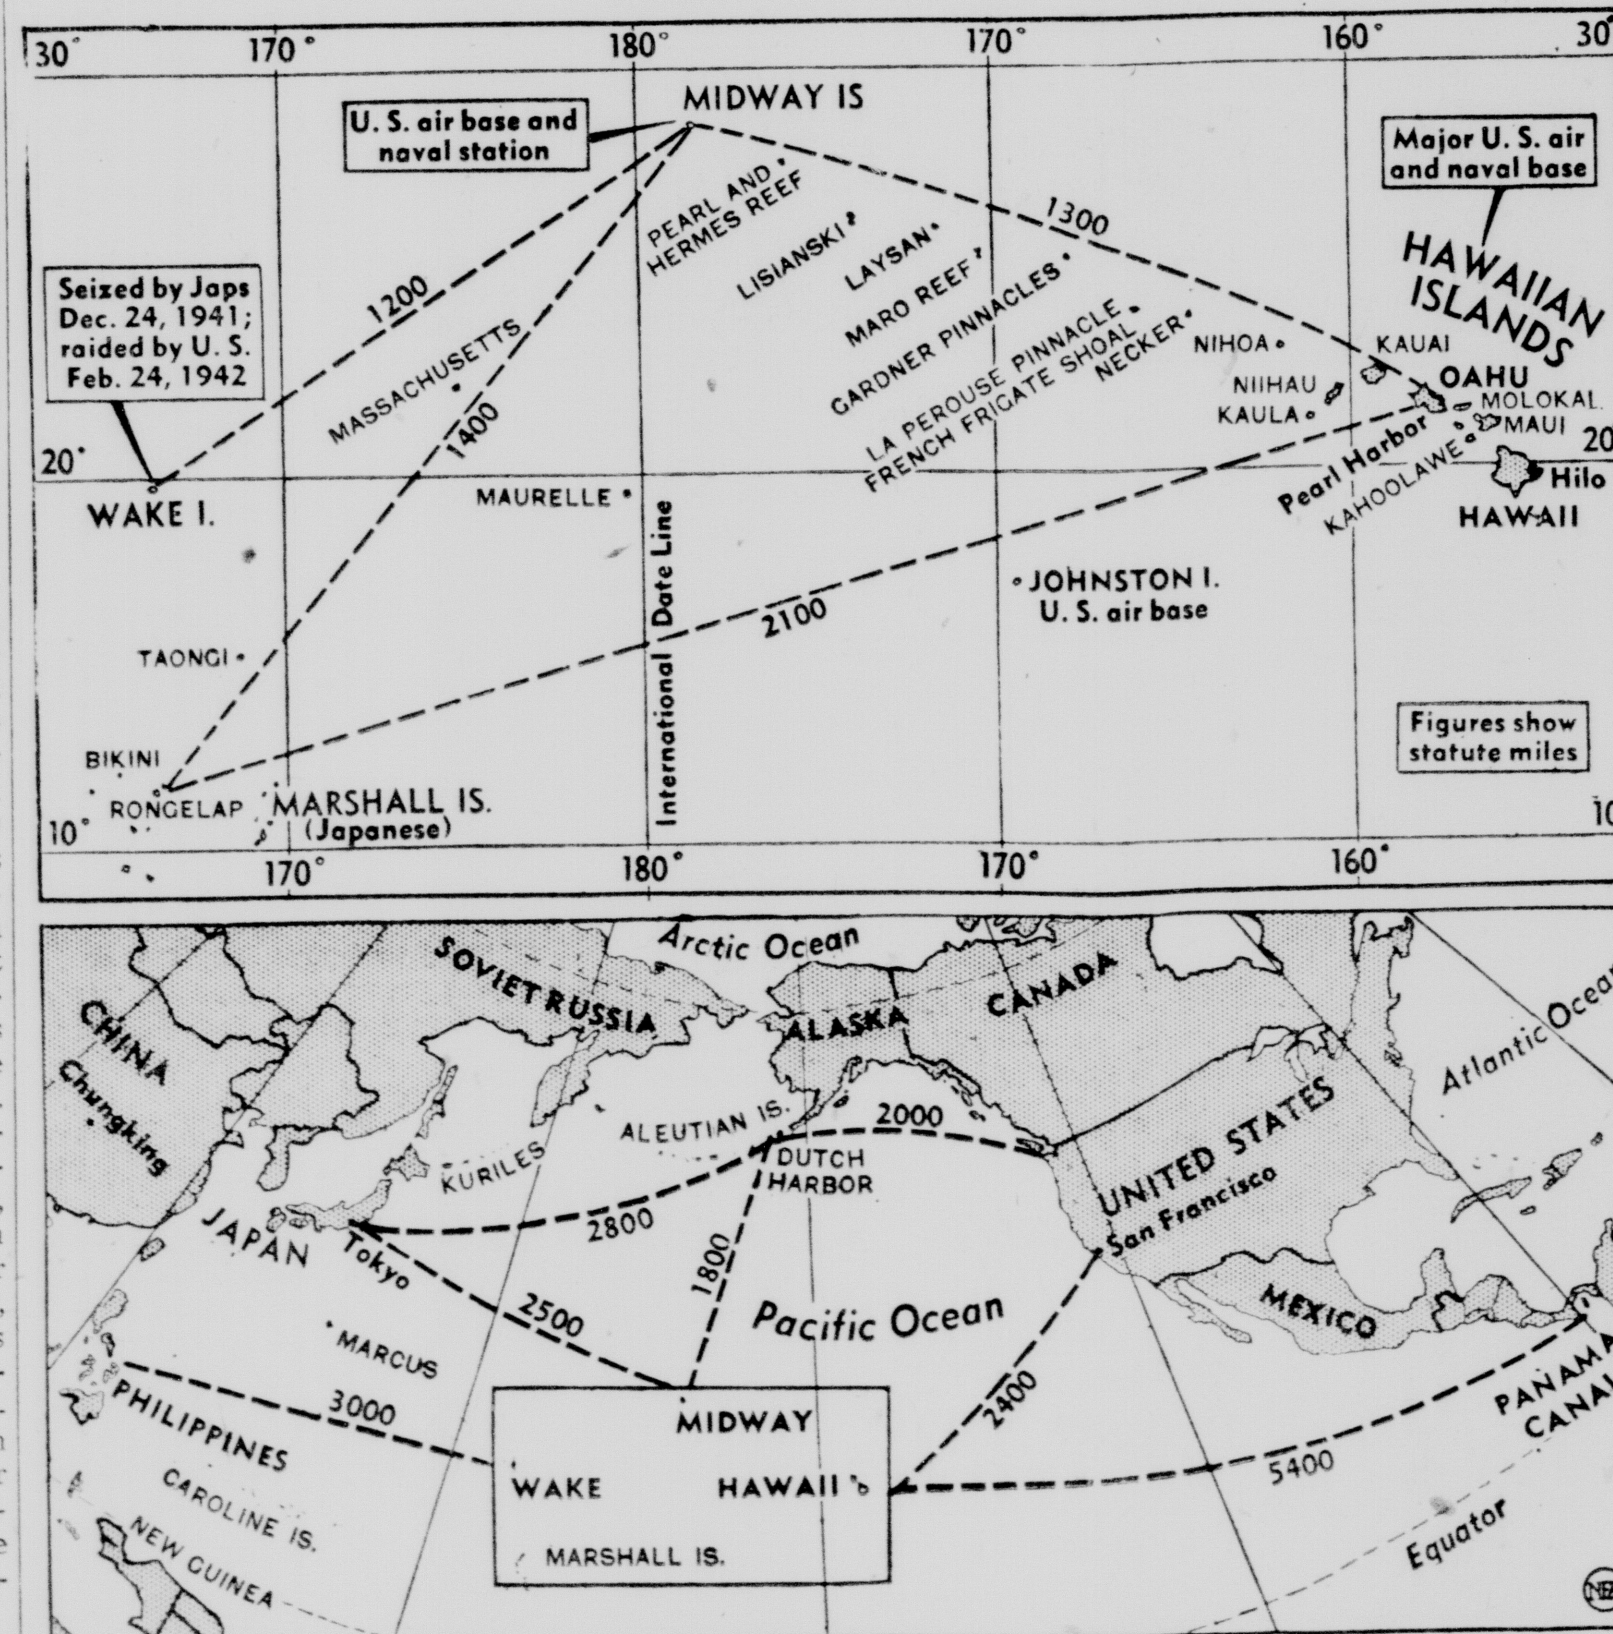

"He died without making any statement."

As he passed through Middleton, he seemed to see the sleepy southern town through fresh eyes. There was the big Ballard Laboratories. They dominated the business section. There were neon and gold-leaf signs. "Southern Roses Cosmetics." "Tennessee Shot Tonic for chills and fever." Perhaps there were a half dozen smaller concerns following in the steps of the great Ballard. It was known in business circles as the "Medicine Town." Ballard had done that. They said he could not do it. They bet he could not. He bet he could. Now it was, local lore would have you believe, the wealthiest small city per capita in the South, perhaps a close rival to the oil fortunes in Texas. All this was a compliment to Strickland Ballard. In his way he was a man of vision. He saw something in some tree barks and field herbs. Middleton today was a toy sky-scraper city, with fine churches, beautiful homes, wealth—and the inevitable minor league evils that follow upon sudden fortunes.

"Sporting blood," Hunter said, half bitterly, and drove from town, taking the old river road which would let him into the big estate from the rear.

To his amazement he found Junior's big car just within the stone-and-iron gate which guarded the back boundary. The big motor was jammed against a tree. One casing had blown out. The door was open. Hunter made an examination of the spot, looked and found bloodstains in the wrecked car. His discovery did not simplify the general mystery. This was a compliment to Strickland Ballard. In his way he was a man of vision. He saw something in some tree barks and field herbs. Middleton today was a toy sky-scraper city, with fine churches, beautiful homes, wealth—and the inevitable minor league evils that follow upon sudden fortunes.

Afterward he went to the office. He sat down and tried to think. The messenger was dead. No tales there. Junior Ballard probably would die. Hardly any tales there. Hunter Dent had the $17,000 in the safe, and the combination safely in his skull. He seemed to have, he supposed, all he needed to make old Strickland Ballard come to him on his knees and say his amens. After that—what? "I wonder," he muttered. He went over to the safe, knelt, twirled the dial, opened the ponderous door.

The leather bag containing $17,000 was gone!

Society and Clubs

The following article, taken from the Hammond Times, Hammond, Ind., of June 8, tells of the approaching marriage of Miss Kathryn McGrath, a niece of William and Miss Helen Sullivan, of route 6, Sedalia. With the was a very attractive picture of the young woman:

"The announcement that Miss Kathryn McGrath, one of the towns most popular and capable young women, will be a June bride, is of distinct interest, for, although the future bride has been wearing an engagement ring from Thomas Leland Rodgers since last Christmas no formal disclosure of the plans was made until yesterday. The announcement party was in the form of an afternoon tea at the home of Miss McGrath's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. McGrath, Highland street, where a number of friends were entertained.

"During the serving of refreshments, the culmination of Miss McGrath's romance in a June wedding was revealed by napkins, which were printed with the names 'Katy and Tom' and the date, 'June 25.' Mrs. James W. Dye, Miss Patricia McShane and Miss Kathryn Dunn poured at the tea table, where yellow and white appointments and a bouquet of daisies in those colors were the attractive decorations.

"Vivacious Miss McGrath met her fiancé when he was located here for about a year as an engineer for the Columbia Center Housing project. Mr. Rodgers left here last summer for the east, and since the first of this year has been living in Evanston, Ill., and working as a construction engineer for the army air base at Glenview, Ill. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Rodgers of Evansville, Ind., where the prospective groom attended high school before he went to Vanderbilt university at Nashville, Tenn. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

"A former Indiana University Extension division student and a graduate of Hammond high school, the bride-to-be was one of the first members of the Bellatrix club and has continued her interest in the group by membership in Bellatrix Alumnae. She is also a member of the local chapter of Pi Sigma Phi sorority. As bookkeeper for the Standard Lumber company, Miss McGrath is well known in business circles.

"The McGrath-Rodgers wedding is to be a simple service two weeks from Thursday at 10 o'clock in the morning at All Saints church rectory."

To these men, the $29,000 wasn't all profit. From it they purchased 13 tons of marble dust, five tons of lime and five pounds of pure pigments.

And Food From 1,344,000 Acres

Arithmetic of our war effort is shown in pictograph above, giving an idea of how much production and food to feed the workers is needed to build the 60,000 planes and 45,000 tanks called for in 1942 by President Roosevelt, and the 32 battleships needed for our two-ocean Navy. Figures are from Department of Agriculture, with food estimates based on 1939 acreage production in Pennsylvania.

Second Siege of Sevastopol

Since last October, German troops have cut Sevastopol, Soviet naval stronghold on the Black Sea, from land communication with the rest of Russia. Sevastopol underwent an even longer siege once before, holding out 11 months in the Crimean War of 1854-55, when Britain, France and Turkey were fighting Russia. It was here that Florence Nightingale founded a nursing tradition tending the wounds of British troops; and here that the "six hundred" immortalized by Tennyson charged "into the valley of death" for attacking Nazis, as the besieged city's people live, work and return the fight under almost constant bombing, artillery fire and enemy troop assaults.

Bill Favors Calling Single Draftees First

Idea Is That The Family Should Be Left Intact

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The Senate approved and sent to the House today a military pay allotment bill requiring draft boards to consider family relationships in calling men for duty with the armed forces.

Under the basic section of the measure, details of which were revised last week by a joint conference committee, the government would help the four lowest ranks of soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen support their dependents.

Deductions taken from the men's pay would be supplemented by federal allowances which in some cases would be considerably larger than the fighting men's contributions.

The second section of the bill revises the Selective Service Act by requiring local draft boards to first exhaust supplies of single men, or those without bona fide family ties, before calling up husbands and fathers.

To Protect Family
Senator Lee (D-Okla.) said the idea behind revising the Selective Service Act was to give expression to congressional intent "that the family shall be left intact as long as possible and that financial dependency is not the controlling point as much as the status of a man as head of a family."

"We want the unmarried men taken first," Lee told reporters. Informed lawmakers estimated that few if any family men would have to be inducted before late next winter.

The bill is expected to receive final congressional action this week.

The financial aid would cover dependents of privates, first class privates, corporals and line sergeants in the army, and of corresponding grades in the other services.

The Dependents
Class A dependents—wives and children—would be paid the allowances and allotments upon the application of their enlisted kinship or any interested person. At the option of the service man, other allowances might be paid to parents, brothers, sisters, grandparents and grandchildren.

A wife with no children would get $50 a month—$22 from her husband and $28 from the government. If she had one child the government would add $12, and $10 for each additional child. For one child but no wife, the soldier would provide $22 and the government $20 a month, with the government adding $10 for each other child.

Some In Two Classes
If a soldier had both class A and B dependents, $27 would be deducted from his pay, which would mean that in the case of a dependent mother, the soldier would be allotting her $5 to which the government would add $15 a month. If a soldier had no class A dependents and a mother whom he wished to aid he would pay $22 a month and the government $15, for a total of $37. In general, class B dependents would receive smaller sums than wives and children.

Soldier Stood At Attention

Many persons who attended the Flag Day exercises at the Elks Home Sunday afternoon were impressed by a man in uniform, standing at attention during the full hour's program. He was with Co. F, 4th Infantry, Missouri Guards. It seemed to those looking on that he did not move a muscle in his body during the entire time. When it was over he relaxed, turned and visited with those near him.

It was learned that he was a member of the cavalry, stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, when he heard of the Flag Day program joined the guards for the afternoon. He is a member of the color guard, and the event had special emphasis for him.

axis attempt to forestall a new British offensive, had developed today into a fluid, violent engagement on the desert approaches to Tobruk, port of entry and base of much of the British strength in Libya. Enemy tanks were showing a wedge from the axis inland salient toward the coast, which if successful, would isolate the troops remaining in the Ain El Gazala region, 40 miles west of Tobruk. The British were attacking the rear of this movement.

With dwindling time in which to start a grand offensive before they are smitten afank, or at the rear on a second European front, the Germans are thrusting at the remnants of Sevastopol while the remainder of the vast German-Russian front shows signs of an imminent general flareup.

Despite a spendthrift use of fighting men, Adolf Hitler still had only the hasty graves of his dead to show for his all-out effort against Sevastopol.

Defenders Hard Pressed

No one could say how long the hard-pressed defenders could hold out. The violence of the fight mounted by the hour.

If the Russians make their slogan stick—"not another step backward!"—Sevastopol will remain a thorn in the flank of the anticipated German drive toward the Caucasus which even now seemed to be taking its preliminary form in the Kharkov sector north of the Crimean peninsula.

There the Germans were attempting to exploit wedges driven into the lines recently rectified by a Russian offensive. These gains likewise cost the Germans heavily in machines and men—2,850 troops lost within the past two days, according to today's Moscow communiqué.

Bitter fighting at many scattered points on the rest of the front suggested that the whole battle-line may be springing into new action.

Challenge To Community By War Veteran

probably hoping to excuse themselves to their children, or to their wives, who may ask them where they were in 1917 or 1918.

Can Help Dependents
To those who are above military age he suggested they look after the dependents of the men in the service. This may mean sacrifice, he said, but it is the duty of those at home. Entertain the soldiers who come to your community on furloughs, open your homes to them, have a place they may go so it will not be necessary for them to see the saloons and roadside taverns for entertainment. He referred also to buying bonds—not just one bond a month if you have money, but many bonds, because after all it is the best investment a person can make.

He compared the small sacrifices such as doing without a little sugar, or driving a car less often, with the sacrifices, and suffering the armed forces are undergoing in the war areas, those who are in battle and those who are prisoners of war, and of the gray haired mothers and wives whose loved ones are making those sacrifices.

People Not Alert
The people of Missouri, he said, do not seem to realize the seriousness of the situation. Perhaps the people on the east and west coast, who fear invasion, the Eskimo in Alaska do, but here in the middle west they do not. He challenged them not to be in the parade with the indifferent and listless crowd, that lets the other fellow take the responsibility, but to give time and money, time to the air wardens classes and other war preparedness groups, and money for bonds and families of men in the service who may need help.

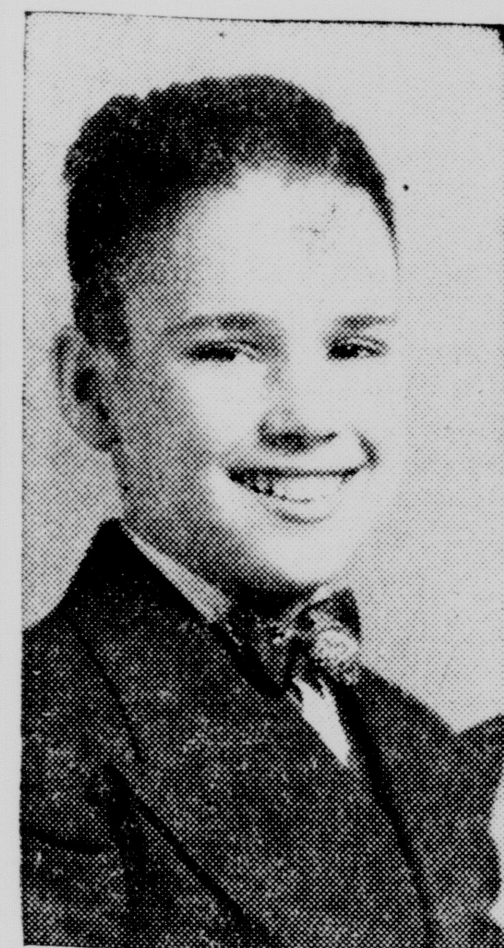

The speaker was introduced by Hugo M. Sparr, chairman of the Elks Flag Day program committee.

Rev. Arnold Spoke
Preceding Mr. Walsh on the program was Rev. Walter P. Arnold, pastor of the East Sedalia Baptist church, World War No. 1 veteran, and acting chairman of Sedalia's flag week committee. He gave interestingly the history of the flag.

NEW YORK, June 15.—After seeing the latest reports on the Hale America tournament, this corner has come around to the idea that the brassie brasshats knew what they were doing when they cancelled this year's regular championships. . . By junking the traditional tournaments and all their rules, they have been able to whop it up for one big event that will bring in some real dough for the U.S.O. and Navy Relief . . . It also provided an opening to issue invitations to several players who missed out in qualifying but who always are popular with the fans.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

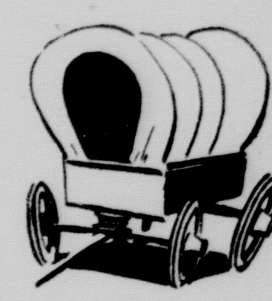

Gas masks which came into use in warfare for the first time when the Germans used poison and mustard gas in World War I, are much improved today over those used then. The Chemical Warfare Branch of the War Department issues these gas masks to every man in the service. We are taking no chances.

The type pictured here is the "can" and "elephant nose" mask and costs about $9.25 each. The headgear is transparent, made of material resembling cellophane and does not cloud with the breath. You can buy two of these gas masks with the purchase of an $18.75 War Bond. We need thousands of them. Don't fail to give at least ten percent of your income every pay day for War Bonds. Buy them at your bank or postoffice, regularly.
